3. Key Positive Business Insights

Customer Purchase Performance

- Nearly 50% of customers purchased a travel plan.
- This indicates a healthy conversion rate and a strong customer base.

Income Analysis

- Middle Income and Upper Middle Income customers contribute the highest number of purchases.
- These income groups are the company's most profitable target customers.

Age Group Analysis

- Customers aged 26–45 years purchase the highest number of travel plans.
- This working-age segment has the highest purchasing power and travel frequency.

Travel Purpose

- Leisure travel is the most preferred purpose.
- Family visits represent the second-largest travel category.

Business travel also contributes significantly to total purchases.

Employment Analysis

- Salaried professionals purchase the highest number of travel plans.
- Customers with stable income are more likely to book travel packages.

Marital Status

- Married customers represent the largest purchasing segment.
- Family-oriented travel has strong business potential.

Education Analysis

- Graduates contribute the highest number of purchases.
- Educated customers are more likely to research and invest in travel experiences.

Booking Method

- Online booking is the dominant booking channel.
- Customers increasingly prefer digital platforms over offline agents.

Preferred Travel Mode

- Flights are the most preferred mode of transportation.
- Customers value convenience and reduced travel time.

City Analysis

- Metro cities contribute the highest purchase volume.
- Urban markets generate the strongest customer demand.

Domestic vs International Travel

- Domestic travel dominates the customer base.
- International travel represents a smaller but premium growth opportunity.

Frequent Travelers

- Frequent travelers are a valuable customer segment with high repeat purchase potential.
- They are ideal candidates for loyalty and retention programs.

Customers with Children

- A significant number of customers travel with children.
 - Family tourism represents an important revenue opportunity.

4. Areas for Improvement (Negative Insights)

International Travel Adoption

International travel demand is comparatively low.

Impact

- Premium revenue opportunities remain underutilized.

Non-Purchasing Customers

Approximately half of the customers have not yet purchased a travel plan.

Impact

- High conversion opportunity remains untapped.

Offline Booking

Offline booking contributes significantly less than online booking.

Impact

- Traditional booking channels are becoming less effective.

Low-Income Segment

Lower-income customers show relatively lower purchase activity.

Impact

- Pricing sensitivity limits conversions.

Senior Age Group (56+)

Customers above 56 years contribute fewer purchases.

Impact

- This segment remains under-engaged.

Business Travel

Business travel contributes less than leisure travel.

Impact

- Corporate travel market has additional growth potential.

Business Recommendations for Anshul Travel Agencies

1. Increase Customer Conversion

- Launch personalized marketing campaigns for customers who have not yet purchased a travel plan.
- Offer first-time booking discounts and seasonal promotions to increase the purchase rate.

2. Focus on High-Value Customer Segments

- Prioritize customers aged 26–45 years, as they represent the highest purchasing segment.
- Target middle-income and upper-middle-income customers with customized travel packages and exclusive offers.

3. Strengthen Family Travel Business

- Introduce family vacation packages, children's discounts, and school holiday travel offers.
- Promote family-friendly destinations to customers traveling with children.

4. Expand International Travel

- Increase awareness of international travel packages.
- Provide visa assistance, travel insurance, EMI payment options, and attractive international tour bundles.

5. Improve Customer Retention

- Introduce loyalty programs, reward points, referral bonuses, and membership plans for frequent travelers.
- Provide exclusive benefits for repeat customers to increase long-term retention.

6. Enhance Digital Sales

- Strengthen online booking channels through exclusive online offers and digital marketing campaigns.
- Improve the website and mobile booking experience to encourage more online reservations.

7. Promote Flight-Based Packages

- Since flights are the most preferred travel mode, collaborate with airlines to offer bundled flight and hotel packages.
- Launch premium air travel deals during peak travel seasons.

8. Increase Corporate Travel Business

- Develop customized travel solutions for corporate clients.
- Introduce business travel memberships, conference travel packages, and employee travel programs.

9. City-Based Marketing Strategy

- Increase marketing investment in high-performing metro cities.
- Run awareness campaigns and promotional offers in low-performing cities to improve customer acquisition.

10. Cross-Sell Additional Services

- Promote travel insurance, hotel upgrades, airport transfers, and sightseeing packages during the booking process.
- Bundle complementary services to increase the average value of each booking.

Final Management Recommendation

Based on the analysis, Anshul Travel Agencies should focus on customer conversion, customer retention, digital booking channels, family travel, and international tourism. Concentrating on the 26–45 age group, middle-income customers, and frequent travelers will maximize business growth. Strengthening online marketing, expanding premium travel offerings, and introducing loyalty programs can help improve revenue, increase repeat bookings, and build long-term customer relationships.
